SUMMARY

Adrian, Head of Litigation at New Media Law, is an experienced lawyer in all aspects of commercial litigation and dispute resolution, including asset recovery, insolvency, construction litigation, adjudication, mediation and arbitration. Adrian also advises clients on criminal litigation and civil fraud concerning government departments and regulators such as SFO, Insolvency Service and HMRC.

Adrian acts discretely for high profile individuals, business owners, large organisations and governments, both in the UK and overseas. His legal experience, business acumen, availability and support, awareness of costs and objectives, are the qualities his clients value highly and endorse.

His personal philosophy is that a collaborative client relationship is an essential foundation for planning a thoughtful, knowledgeable, strategic and economically successful outcome.

Adrian is married to Amanda and lives in Hertfordshire. Their shared personal interests include motorsport, shooting and bridge, and Adrian cooks, coaches the children and plays hockey for a local club, and enjoys an occasional and very unpredictable game of golf.
